Hi Jess!
Yesterday I went to the new shopping centre (1) everyone's talking about. I saw Amy there – the girl (2) we met at Mark's birthday party last month. Remember her? I was looking for a new tennis racket (3) I saw her. She didn't recognise me at first because, at the party (4) we met I had long hair and now I've had it cut short. Anyway, the tennis racket (5) I bought in the end is smaller than I thought, so I'm going to change it. Perhaps you'd like to come with me to the shopping centre tomorrow?
Speak soon!
Alex

We've got an amazing new sports centre in our town. I joined last week and I can't wait to start going. It's much bigger than I imagined. It has an indoor football (1), five tennis (2) and it even has an athletics (3) Can you believe it? Apparently, they're planning to build an ice (4) too, but I don't think that will be ready until next year. Shame. I suppose that would have been too much to ask. Perhaps we should ask them if they can build a ski (5) at the same time!

Physical education steps into the 21st century

We all know that physical activity is important in our lives, not only to improve our health and strength but also our psychological well-being. To encourage all sorts of people, particularly teenagers, to participate more in sports and games and feel the benefits, sports companies are developing new games that can offer the challenge and excitement to motivate, while helping people get fitter. Many education departments believe that it's important to bring this excitement into school sports as well. (1) One way to do this is to introduce students to unusual, fun activities like ultimate frisbee and Zumba classes. These are already being taught in some schools and are very popular with students. World number 1 inline skater Jenna Downing says, 'When I'm visiting schools in my role as an athlete mentor, one thing is clear – PE is changing, and it's for the better. (2) Today schools are offering a wide variety of sporting options to suit every taste'. After all, there's no school rule that says we have to concentrate only on the more traditional sports!

One new sport that's proving extremely popular in schools now is Crazy Ball. This sport has been introduced into the PE. curriculum to help teenagers get a really exciting and exhausting workout during their PE. lessons. It has been taken up by a lot of schools who feel that it's the perfect sport to involve all the students in the class at the same time, even those who are usually less enthusiastic about PE. It's a sport that anyone can play, at any level of ability. (3) It can be played inside or outside depending on the season and it doesn't require a lot of expensive equipment.

So what exactly is Crazy Ball? Essentially it's a game played by two people on a court with nets at either end. These small rectangular nets sit on the floor at each end of the court, like hockey nets. They are double-sided and one side is called the "crazy" side. The idea is that when the ball hits the crazy side of the net it rebounds in an unpredictable way. (4) They have to really stay focused and be ready to move fast to hit the ball wherever it goes. The game started as a training activity for other sports and is played by top athletes around the world to improve their reaction times. (5) It can also be played with four nets and two teams of two players on the court. In this version everyone is active all of the time because two balls are constantly flying around! (6) Jake Williams, a PE. teacher at Stonecove secondary school in Wales, says of the game, 'It's the most popular game we've ever introduced into our PE. lessons. The kids love it because it's fast and fun and easy to learn. The teachers love it because it gets all kids participating and moving – no-one gets to sit on the sidelines in Crazy Ball!'

The football World Cup (1) always watched by millions of people around the world and there are inevitably events that both excite and shock us. However, in every match, whether it's at international or local level, there are always questions and disagreements (2) decisions (3) have been made by the referee on the (4) At several world cups over the last few years these disagreements have become very public indeed. People around the world saw (5) that clearly went into the net but was disallowed because there was no technology in place near the goal line to check. In other sports, such as tennis and cricket, special cameras are regularly (6) to detect whether a ball has crossed a line or not, particularly in top competitions. For many years the use of this type of technology has been refused by those powerful people who control the game of football internationally. There are many companies (7) have invented ways of determining whether a goal has actually been scored. One company has invented a (8) to plant inside the football itself, and others focus on technology which is related to filming from different angles. But one thing is certain – technology will soon be playing its part in top football events.
